Darcey Lazerte recently defended his thesis for the Doctor of Ministry degree. While attending Trinity College as an Arts student studying history and political science he came to be intrigued by the Anglican expression of Christianity which was much different from his evangelical past. After a decade of ordination in the Anglican Church of Canada he really began to have some significant questions of how Anglicans see mission and specifically the ministry of evangelism. His Doctor of Ministry work explores the ministry of evangelism from a wide variety of perspectives.
